THE ARTIST

Mario Mariani is an eclectic pianist and composer; well known in Italy, his style goes from contemporary music to theatrical performances, film scoring and television.

He made numerous concerts in Italy, Europe and the United States on his own and in chamber orchestra (as for the official theme composed for the prestigious Venice Film Festival).

The experience of watching Mario Mariani play live is amazing and very special, because he uses the piano as if it were intended as a multitude of instruments, interacting with different types of objects directly used on the strings of the piano, where the sound comes alive. Through this technique he produces what he likes to call "the utopia of sound".

CREATIVE RESEARCH

Unconventional sounds as well as a "material" approach to music: the piano becomes a creative and orchestral tool, by interacting with various objects - whisks, stripes, beads and more - directly on the strings, which are used to express its infinite potential, enhanced by its theatrical and expressive sense.

"Real time" compositions: Mario establishes a dynamic harmony between the creative intuition and appeal of his audience, may it be the musicians, painters or the public itself, in a unique event that is the result of his extensive research experience, in a personal and musical sense. This is the result of a preparation that takes place days before and culminates in the performance, capturing the "spark of creation" at the exact moment when it occurs.

Contamination of artistic languages: the music blends with a variety of art forms, to project the public in a choral work, as in "Action Music Action Painting", live performance with the extreme painter Giuliano Del Sorbo (Pesaro Teatro Rossini, May 2010) or in "Mandala" with the sand animation artist Massimo Ottoni.

MUSIC, SOCIAL VALUE AND PROMOTION

Mario considers his music as a purely creative activity that gives itself away and becomes fruitful discussions on topical issues such as respect for the mankind, the environment, the simplicity and the concept of solidarity.

The beauty of nature and the desire of challenge has inspired some extreme and unconventional performances such as the one he realized during the summer of 2010 in one of Monte Nerone's Caves (called Grotta dei Prosciutti), near the Apennines between the regions of Umbria and Le Marche, where he installed a grand piano and lived for a whole month in a totally impact-free way, donating his music to more than 1000 spectators.

2011 gave birth to the Free Theatre of Monte Nerone, a one-month lasting impact-free festival in the woods. The event is filled with concerts, meetings and workshops; it confirmed itself as an annual appointment with its 2012 edition.

Apart playing in “usual places” like theatres, festivals and more commons venues, Mario's continuous research coincides with the desire to capture the energy that characterizes a specific place (and audience) offering, in opposition to the difficult current scenario, a strong and positive message.

BIOGRAPHY

Mario Mariani, composer & pianist, was born in Pesaro (Italy), 1970. Piano degree at Conservatory G. Rossini.

He writes music for movies, TV, cartoon, theatre, chamber and electronic music.

His soundtracks for cinema have taken part at Cannes, Venice, New York and Berlin film festivals.

As a performer, he likes to express himself through different styles, with particular attention to improvisation and audience participation, with concerts in Europe and the U.S. In 1992 he founded a 9 member band called “Broz Ensemble” that performs exclusively his own compositions; a remarkable cooperation consists in the teen-opera Isabella by Azio Corghi.

In 2003 Teatro Stabile delle Marche commissioned him the music for the play “Le Borgueois Gentilhomme”, with the Italian top-class comic star Giorgio Panariello.

In 2004 he starts working with filmmaker Vittorio Moroni (“You must be the wolf, 2004; Licu’s Holidays, 2007, Eve and Adam , 2009”), and writes music for advertising agencies, working for Microsoft, Toyota, Fiat, as well as the Biennale of Venice (Coèfore by Eschilus) and United Nations. Several commissions in 2006, among them: LUZ for orchestra and “Il Parlatore eterno”, opera for baritone and 7 pianos and a new music for Venice Film Festival.

Over the years he was invited by many european associations and the Italian Institutes of Culture to hold piano recitals.

Mario Mariani has won the “Novaracinefestival” award for “best music” with “Under my garden” by Andrea Lodovichetti (Babelgum – Looking for Genius Award – Cannes)

In 2010 receives a commission from Filarmonica Marchigiana for a humoresque orchestral piece called Bolero 2.0 and during the summer Mario decides to move a step further, staying and living for one month in a cave on the top of Monte Nerone, between Marche and Umbria with a grand piano, a recording system and a tent, offering each day an open performance to the audience.

In 2011 he built a small wooden theatre in a forest creating the Teatro libero del Monte Nerone (Free theatre of Monte Nerone) : an “environmental sustainability” festival with over one month of events with international artists. His albums of solo piano: "Utopiano" (Vivirecords 2010), "Elementalea" (Ala Bianca/ Zingaroton, 2012) and "The Soundtrack Variations" (Intemporanea/Halidon, 2017)

He recently won the “Oscar Marchigiano 2014” award.

In 2016 he is the Artistic Director of Naturalmente Pianoforte Festival Piano Academy.

He holds workshop on creative music, lectures and special projects with people with social problems.

His new album "The Rossini Variations" is out now.
